Credit Union of Colorado Foundation raises $16,000 to benefit state employees facing crises

DENVER - The Credit Union of Colorado Foundation's annual charity golf event held June 14th raised $16,000 that will directly benefit individual state employees and their families who are facing financial crises. The money raised will be conveyed as direct grants to employees who are recommended for assistance by the Colorado State Employees Emergency Assistance Program, known as C-SEAP.

The grants are for short-term aid to help families meet essential needs such as groceries and living expenses while they deal with emergency financial challenges.

"We're really happy our event raised so much money this year to help families get through difficult times," said foundation chairperson Doug Schneider.
